

Do you want to show your work to other photographers? Are you interested in looking at and discussing photography? Are you searching for new directions in your photography?

London Independent Photography

No group has done more to propagate the cause of creative Photography than LIP.

What is LIP? London Independent Photography is a friendly forum for both amateur and professional photographers. Its activities are designed to bring together photographers with different interests and different levels of expertise who are interested in developing their personal approach to photography and improving their skills.

Group Activities: LIP organizes programmes of practical workshops, master classes and talks, and also holds regular group sessions in central London as well as locations around London (usually in members' homes), which give members a chance to bring work for discussion and to talk about all things photographic.

Exhibitions and Shows: Many LIP members have exhibited widely and held solo exhibitions, but gather together to show their individual approaches to photography in LIP's annual group show in London.

LIP magazine: Our magazine is free to all members. It features articles written by members and provides a forum for them to air their thoughts and exchange ideas. It shows photographs, includes book reviews and a diary of events in and around London.
